PIPL (Personal Information and Personal Library) is an internet music player which was designed to be easy and quick to use, while incorporating a sophisticated file management system. PIPL is very similar to iTunes, and has many of the features of the latter, but is basically designed with one important difference: PIPL allows you to search your entire music collection from a single centralized location. PIPL has a configurable GUI, featuring your music library in an easy-to-use tree-view. Also features a playlist manager which keeps track of your favorite songs, and lets you search by genre, artist or song name, and a comprehensive web search engine that helps you look up any song you need. PIPL's unique "Cloud Storage" system allows you to store your music on an internet server and access it from anywhere at any time. This eliminates the need for local music files, and also allows you to share your collection with other PIPL users. PIPL is currently available for the Windows platform, but a Mac version will be available soon. This review is Copyright (C) 2009 PC Stickers. All rights reserved.
