Remove Text Between Two Strings Software allows you to easily remove a text between two different user-defined strings. The program can easily replace a string found between two other strings with a new string and delete all of the text found between the two strings. You can specify the start and end of the text and the start and end of the replacement strings. The program supports Windows 95, 98, NT, 2000, XP, 2003, Vista and Windows 7. The program can process more than one text file at a time. Removal Guide: 1. Open the program and select the text to remove from the file. 2. Click on the Start button. Then, you will be asked to define the start and end of the text to remove. 3. You will also be asked to select a replacement text. This can be either a new text you want to replace the text found between the two strings with, or the text itself. 4. After you have defined the text to remove and replaced it with the replacement text, press OK. The program will begin to work. The application will remove the text found between the start and end string specified. It will replace the removed text with the new text specified as the replacement. 5. After the program has removed the text, press the Finish button. The program will be finished and will generate the output file. 6. To open the output file, click on the Open button. You will be prompted to select the output file to open. Then, it will be automatically opened in Notepad.
